

The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, January 14. 1719.

From the Brussels Gazette, dated Jan. 13.

Genoa, December 24.

AFTER the Departure of one of the British Men of War that were here, the two Spanish Princes that were likewise here tarried not, are also sail'd, and have taken a small Oyl from Calabria, and another from Pelucca come from Naples with Dispatch from the Viceroy, has pursued her Voyage towards Port Mahon. The Captain of a French Ship come from Malta, reports, that he departed from that Island in Company with five Spanish Men of War, which directed their Course towards Cagliari, and saw some English with Transports sailing for Melazzo, from whence the Reports agree, that the Imperial Army finding it self very much shut up in the Tongue of Land where they are incamp'd, General Zumjungen intended to assault the Spanish Retrenchments, to make an Opening, and gain Ground, in order to be able the more easily to relieve the Besieged. The said General presses very much the sending of Reinforcements, to be in a Condition, in Case of ill Success, to repair the Loss he may sustain in Spanish Retrenchments, and view that the Regiment of Grenadiers, which is advanc'd in the neighbourhood of Naples, makes no delay to go to imbarc and be transported, and that the Regiments coming from the Parmesan, the Modenese, and the Mantuan, are to hasten their March. The Master of a Bark arrived from Bisette, who anchor'd at Alazzo, reports, that the Peasants of that Neighbourhood had taken 12 Tunisian Slaves, who had landed out of a Corsair Ship stranded upon the Coast, as they were pursuing a Fisherman. We hear by Letters from Malta, that his Eminence Don Raimondo Perellos de Roccaful, Gentleman of Arragon, and Grand Master of Malta, is dead, aged 86 Years. He was the 63d Chief of that illustrious Order, and had possess'd the Dignity 21 Years. The same Letters add, that M. Talera, a Sicilian, who was a Commander and Great Cross, is chosen in his Place.

Warsaw, Dec. 24. In the Conference which the Tartar Envoy has had with the Ministers of State and the Senators who are here, he offer'd in the Name of the Cham his Master some Troops, in case the King and the Republick had need of them, to serve against their Enemies; and said that to that end some Hordes of Tartars lay ready to march upon the first Command. He was answer'd, that the King and the Republick desire no other on their part than to live in Friendship and good Correspondence with the Princes their Neighbours, and thank'd him for the Offer of Troops, having at present no need of them. He then said, that having divers times ask'd if there were still any Muscovites in the Country, it had been answer'd that there remain'd some of their Troops upon the Frontiers; but his Prince not having been able to have any certain Advice upon that Subject, he is oblig'd to repeat that Question, the rather because he had himself seen some Muscovites pass the Vistula, near the Prag; he desir'd to know whether they were in the Country, and if they had the Permission of the King. To which was answer'd, that the Invasion of the Swedes, had oblig'd to suffer them in the Country, and that they carry contrary to the Will of the King and the Three Estates of the Crown and the Great Dutchy, who have dispatch'd an Express to the Czar to press their Departure, and that it was to wait for the return of that Express and the Evacuation of the Muscovites, that the said Diet has been prorogued. The Envoy again declar'd, that he was charg'd by his Prince to offer his Services to the King and the Republick, and was answer'd, that if there was need of his Assistance a Regard would be had to his Offers. And so the Conference ended, and the Senate made a Report to the King of what had pass'd.

Copenhagen, Dec. 24. The Danish Envoy is arriv'd from Norway, with the Confirmation of the Demand of the King, and the precipitated departure of the Army from the Kingdom, and the particulars, which are the same as those of the last time.

Of their Army, the Swedish Flotilla attempted to sail out of the Swinesund, but Vice-Admiral Rosenpalm was endeavouring to overtake and fight them. The Artillery the Enemy had before Frederickshall fell into the Hands of the Danes, the Swedes having been oblig'd to leave part of them upon the Place for want of Horses to draw them off, and the other part having been put on board a Ship, they were forc'd for want of Time to sink it. There have been buried before Frederickshall about 3000 Swedish Corps, and between 6 and 700, among whom are some Officers, were found in their Camp sick or wounded. The Colonel and Adjutant-General Mestling arriv'd also two Days ago from that Kingdom, who reports, that he had himself been in the Swedish Camp after their Retreat, and was in the Approaches to see the Place where the King of Sweden was kill'd; he adds, that the sick and wounded unanimously assure, that in this last Invasion of Norway, the Swedes lost above 4000 Men; that their numerous Cavalry had had nothing but Straw the four last Days, all their other Forage having been consum'd, and that Count Sponeck has sent a strong Detachment of Danish Troops, to endeavour to cut off the Retreat of the Swedish General Ahrenfeldt out of the Territory of Drontheim, or at least to harass them. Now the Kingdom of Norway is entirely deliver'd from the Swedish Invasion, his Danish Majesty has order'd publick Thanksgivings to God to be made in all the Churches of this City, on the first Day of the new Year. We have an exact List of all the Swedish Troops that enter'd Norway, which amounts to 11400 Horse, and 15600 Foot.
